

Track C: Prevention Science

Elizabeth M Irungu, Kenya

Elizabeth M Irungu, has worked for more than 10 years in the field of HIV prevention research, primarily among HIV-serodiscordant couples and also among young women. She was lead clinician for the Partners PrEP Study and the Partners Demonstration Project in Thika, Kenya. She currently leads the Partners Scale-Up Project, an implementation science project that aims to catalyse scale up of oral PrEP for HIV-serodiscordant couples in public HIV care clinics in Kenya; it is done in collaboration with the International Clinical Research Centre at the University of Washington. She works closely with the Kenya National AIDS and STI Control Programme and is a member of the PrEP Technical Working Group.